At Gotessons we are constantly working towards creating better environments for our customers. There is an active focus to improve acoustics, lighting, air and ergonomics. "We are very happy that the production chose furniture from from Gotessons and A.M. Acoustics when they furnished their police station. It's even more fun to see how actively they use them in the series", says Johan Götesson, Creative Director at Gotessons. Office Ballz was among the chosen products and is recommended in working environments where sitting occurs a lot, in order to compensate with an activating seating. The shape of the Office Ballz depends on the pilates ball inside. It demands that the core works to keep the body stable and leads to stronger muscles and a better posture.

In an environment where there is a lot of movement and noise, it's essential to take noise reducing materials into consideration. Our sound absorbing table screens are an excellent choice for this. Not only do they improve acoustics, they also create individual work spaces. Our popular The Hut with its befitting Monoply inspired pieces also suit the activity based work concept. The assortment focuses on creative meeting places and the use of single work spaces.

Textiles easily create a welcoming feeling and can simultaneously be used to divide space. LOD and GARDINER from A.M. Acoustics are excellent examples of stylish and usable acoustic solutions. Gotessons' assortment of artificial plants have the same broad area of use. Build an oasis of greenery or use our taller plants as a creative room divider.

A power nap can be compared with a restart of the day. Our product Office Nap promotes taking a micro break to regain energy. The filling consists of EPP bullets that adjust after your body shape for the highest comfort. At the AAAS science conference in San Diego, sleep scientist Sara Mednick talked about naps improving memory functions, increasing performance and creativity. Pull your Office Nap by the leather lable to a quieter space and have a comfortable lie down after lunch.
