A fantastic new product from Gotessons that make sense in todays activitybased workplaces. The Rising is an sound absorbing floor screen fully adjustable in height without screws or after mounting.

Today sharing a workplace is common, several people using the same workplace at different time of the day. Working in open area, be social active with colleagues or close yourself of and create a private area with the flick of a wrist! The Rising can also function as room dividers in several landscapes, in offices, restaurants and hotel conference areas.

The height is fully adjustable and the upper screen is made of the highest sound absorbing material making those telephone conversations more pleasant for the speaker and for their surroundings.

"Workplace has become less and this is a trend that applies worldwide. What costs the most in todays world is squaremeter of prime property. The Rising is an inexpensive investment to get smaller and more effective workplace area in an open office landscape", says Tomas Svensson, Product Development Manager at Gotessons.
