BIMObject is the world's largest digital content management system for BIM objects and plays an important role in architechts' every day work. A BIM object can be described as a digital copy of a produced product and can be used in drawing environments in the first phase of planning and designing new projects. Today, Gotessons has 50 products as BIM objects, for example The Hut Lounge Collection, artificial plants, monitor arms and lighting, as well as 5 showcases. A showcase is a group of BIM objects that are downloaded as a complete package, simplifying the design process. One example of a Gotessons showcase: table equiped with a Gotessons A30 desk screen, ZAP Twin monitor arm, Tulip LED Lamp and Max Power Grommet.

Yesterday, BIM LIVE started in Malmö and in the evening the winners were prized at BIMobject Awards. Gotessons were nominated in the following categories:

• Most Downloaded BIM object for 2019
• Most NEW downloaded brand for 2019
• Most NEW downloaded BIM object for 2019

During the evening, it was stated that Gotessons had won the two first categories and Gotessons Marketing Director Jessica Carlstein was there to recieve the prizes.
– We are of course very happy that our products have been so well recieved and downloaded so many times. We want to make it even easier to work with us in every way and BIM is a natural step on that path, says Jessica Carlstein.

GOTESSONS BIM-OBJEKT

Today, there is a wide assortment of Gotessons products to download as BIM objects. Projects can be decorated with everything from Gotessons desk and floor screens to electrical accessories, cable management, acoustic products, lighting, room i a room solutions and artificial plants.
